

Dog-o-Matic: the dog washing laundromat machine

May 18, 2009

Do
you

Larry Berreth
Denver Dog News Examiner

begrudge the chore of washing your dog?
Does the shaken water and loose hair all over your tub get you down?

A French entrepreneur has designed the “Dog-o-Matic”, a laundromat-style dog washing machine that can wash your pooch in about a half hour.

Creator Romain Jarry states the device is a proven success in his home town of St. Max, and hopes to introduce it in England next year. He also insists the Dog-o-Matic is not cruel, albeit a bit unusual.

“It doesn’t take long to wash the dog - usually a few minutes. The longest part is the drying,” says Jarry. “The dogs don’t seem to get bored. They just sit there and they come out clean.”

By the way, there was another product that had the same name, only without the extra capital letter. Westinghouse made a “Dog-o-matic” that was a flash electric hotdog cooker.